"Subdue the earth it shall be thine."
How grand, how glorious was the plan!
How wise the law divine!

Agriculture is the art of rearing these plants and animals that are best suited with the Fast Line South on the Northern Central Rillway, and arriving at Baltimore at 12.30 noon. The tropical climate, where the infancy of man seems to have been cradled, would appear also to have been cradled, would appear also to have led him to defer the necessity of much attention to it. Very soon, however, the diversity of population necessitated its development, since we find that the Egyptians, at the earliest period to which history reaches, were already skillful agriculturists, and had carried the art to such a pitch of perfection as not only to have sustained their own numerous population, but be have made Egypt the granary of the world. > Progress of Agriculture.-Four centuries have not yet elapsed since the exis-tence of the New World became known to Columbus. Eternal and majestic forests then covered a great portion of its auriace. Its noble rivers were navigated only by the beardless son of the forest in his frail canoe, and the Red Man, with untutored mind, was monarch of all he surveyed.

Then profound quietand stillness reigned over all these hills and valleys, except when it was broken by the wild whoop The profound quietand stillness reigndown all these hills and valleys, except when it was broken by the wild whoop of the Indian, by the murmuring of washing and twittering of birds.

and productive farms are now to be seen on every hand. The waste hunting ground is converted into the fruitful farm ground is converted into the fruitful farm and the population of foreign nations receive the superabundance of the American soil, in exchange for the products of their tespective climes. But what has brought about this pleasing and happy change? Ah! it is to our systems of popular education, which so wisely and so liberally provide for the young and rising generation, that America owes its superiority and supremacy—that independence of spirit—that hatred of wrong and oppression—that ardent love of liberty which characterize us as a people.

Though identified with the schools, and school interests of the county, it is not my purpose to say much on the subject of education on this occasion. But you will pardon me for adverting to it in a general way, since Agriculture and Civilization owe so much of their progress and development to popular education.

The strongest bulwark—the surest passport to the permanence and prosper-ity of our glorious Union will be found in providing sound and useful instruction for the people. With the education and enlightenment of the masses, what shall hinder our country from advancing to that eminence of national greatness and happiness, beyond which national happi-ness cannot extend. The Bible, too, and the institutions of Christianity are with ings which religion can impart. Truly ours is a favored land-our lines are cast in pleasant places.

Position of the Furmer.—What, it may be asked, is the position of the American Farmer, when compared with that of the merchant, the politician, the lawyer and the physician? Should he be content with his labor for himself and his children? Or should be leave his occupation and adopt some other? Like many other occupations, that of the farmer has to supply the wants of man. A complete dark, as well as its bright side. And to history of it from the carliest period down decide on its comparative advantages, to the present time would be the history we must inquire what is the object of of the labors and progress of the human man's existence, and how shall he attain Valuable as these evenings are, they see but a fraction—a small fraction—of what is within the reach of every farmer. Let within the reach of every farmer. Let this time be spent in the cultivation of their minds—in laying up stores of use-

I have already alluded to the benefits of the common school. They make a good foundation for subsequent mental culture. STABA"

It seems to be the general impression of scientific men that a meteoric shower may be expected on the morning of No-vember 18th, and as such a sight is only witnessed eace in an ordinary generation, we have concluded to give our readers such information on the subject as we chance to passess. The foundation for the belief that this phenomenon may be expected on the lath, is the fact that a similar phenomenon occurred on the 13th of November, 1800, and on the 13th of November, 1833—at an interval of thirty-three years—which, if there be any fixed rules governing their recurrence, will bring it upon the 13th of November, 1866,

On the morning of the 13th of November, 1833, we learn from Olmsted's Astronomy, from two o'clock until broad iny-light, the sky being perfectly serone and cloudless, the whole heavens were ighted with a magnilicent display of celestial-fre works. At times the air was illed with strenks of light, occasioned by different prismatic colors.

On tracing back the lines of direction in which the meteors moved, it was found that they all appeared to radiate from the same point, which was situated near one of the stars of the sickle, in the Constelof the stars of the sickle, in the Constellation "Leo," and in every repetition of the meteoric sho ver, the radiant point has occupied nearly the same situation. This shower pervaded nearly the whole of North America, having appeared in almost equal splendor from the British possessions of the North to the West Inare time or managed books, good family and in studying Agricultural periodicals, and in studying at least the general principles of the Scinical culable value.

Apricultural Societies.—Agriculture, I am happy to say, is in the ascendant.—It is every year becoming more and more an object of general interest. The Spirit severy year becoming more and more an object of general interest. The Spirit wand enterprise in this direction was nearly the same. The meteors began to attract attention by their unusual frequency and brilliancy, from nine to twelve o'clock maning; were striking in their whom to four; arrived at the following striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to four; arrived at the striking in their was not appeared to the striking in th appearance from two to four; arrived at their maximum, in many places, about four o'clock, and continued until rendered invisible by the light of day.

Some authorities fix the date of the first recorded meteoric shower on November 12th, 1799, instead of 1800, and consequently fix the time for its recurrence on November 12th, 1867-being an interval of thirty-four, instead of thirty-three years. determine which calculation is the most Astronomers seem to agree that these periodical meteors have their origin be-yond the atmosphere, descending to us from some nebulous body with which the earth falls in, and near or through the borders of which it passes; and that this nebulous body has an independent exist-ence as a member of the solar system, with regular periods of revolution. It is further established that these meteors consist of light combustible matter; that they move with great velocity, amounting in some instances to nineteen miles in a second; that some of them are bodies of large size, some of them are but-ies of large size, sometimes several thou-sand feet in diameter; that when they enter the atmosphere, they rapidly and powerfully condense the air before them, and thus elicit the light that sets them on fire; and they are burned up at considerable height above the earth, sometimes not less than thirty miles.

The "show" will be a free one; and of course everybody will remain awake to see it. If the scene is anything to be compared with that of November, 1833, It will well repay a night's watching. On the occasion alinded to, many thought the end of the world had come, while the more superstitions were stricken dumb with fear. We remember one amusing hearts of our people. > The shameless hypocrisy of the Republican leaders in professing to be the "soldiers' friends," was truthfully exhibited in reference to the soldiers at the Carlisle Garrison. They used every effort to prevent them from voting-knowing that a large majority of them would wote the Democratic ticket;—and finally succeeded in procuring an order that none should leave the Garrison on election day. A little timely information forwarded to Washington, however, soon set the matter right. How the home-guard veterana did chuckle when they thought they had deprived the members of the permanent company of their votes. The order was read on dress-parade, on Sunday prior to the election, and there was a joyful flut-ter in the radical nest all Sunday after-noon and evening. The sadrking and stilling young enthusiasts who run the radical machine never seemed to think that there was a higher power than the commandant of Carlisle Garrison, and when they awakened to the fact they seemed to be quite chop-fallen.

Young gentlemen, you had better look to your own records. If the men who per-iled life and limb are not entitled to vote when at home in their proper election dis-tricts, think you that yourselves, who evaded the responsibility which the gov-ernment placed upon you, have a right to the elective franchise? We have had enough of this shameless hypocrisy, and it is high time the self-conceit of the young gentlemen who aspire to lead the radicals of Cumberland county would permit them just for once, to see themselves us others see them.—Carlisle Volunteer,

A Humbug.

HOW OFTEN WE HEAR THIS EXPRESSION from persons reading advertisements of Patent | Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may the right. It is over 19 years since I introduced my cine the Venetian Liniment to the mblis I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storckeepers through a sinul section of the country, many taking it with great relactance: but I told them to let any one have it, and it it did not do all I stated in my gamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crasy, and that arould be the last they would see of me. But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about 4wo months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment yearly, and all for cash. I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrinea, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasins, and price.

Sea sickness as an laternal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally, see sorth accompanying each bottle,—and externally for quality.
